LSUMC MEDICINE

I will look upon him who shall have taught me this Art even as one of my parents. I will share my substance with him, and I will supply his necessities, if he be in need. I will regard his offspring even as my own brethren, and I will teach them this Art, if they would learn it, without fee or covenant. I will impart this Art by precept, by lecture and by every mode of teaching, not only to my own sons but to the sons of him who has taught me, and to disciples bound by covenant and oath, according to the Law of Medicine.

The regimen I adopt shall be for the benefit of my patients according to my ability and judgement, and not for their hurt or for any wrong. I will give no deadly drug to any, though it be asked of me, nor will I counsel such, and especially I will not aid a woman to procure abortion. Whatsoever house I enter, there I will go for the benefit of the sick, refraining from all wrongdoing or corruption, and especially from any act of seduction, of male or female, of bond or free. Whatsoever things I see or hear concerning the life of men, in my attendance on the sick or even apart therefrom, which ought not to be noised abroad, I will keep silence thereon, counting such things to be as sacred secrets.

On August 10, 1978, Freshman Orientation began. It was designed to familiarize us with our new surroundings and to assure us that there was no cause for anxiety. It took a full two days. Then the upperclassmen told us the real truth about Medical School, and it only took four sentences. They said:

"In the Freshman year, they scare you to death.
In the Sophomore year, they test you to death.
In the Junior year, they work you to death.
In the Senior year, they bore you to death."

And so this was the year in which we were scared to death. For some of us the fright was only occasional and low key, more motivational than detrimental. For others, the whole year was one long, painful anxiety attack until the last final exam about nine months later.

Everything about the Freshman year was intense. We studied harder and longer than we had ever studied in college. We probably absorbed more knowledge in one year of med school than we did in four (or five, or six . . .) years of college. It was a year of basic sciences. We learned in great detail the gross and microscopic anatomy of the human body. We learned a lot more than we ever cared to know about the biochemical reactions of a cell. We performed surgery on volunteer dogs and breathed the O_2 on top of the magnificent, splendid twin peaks of Mt. Levitsky.

We had various ways of letting off steam. When we partied, we didn't get merely drunk. We got blasted. We got rowdy to the point of having neighbors call the police not once, but two or three times in a night. We gatored on the floor, and when that got old, we hung from pipes and gatored on the ceiling. Some of us released the pressure we felt every day in more subtle, normal ways. Some of us never released the pressure at all.

Years from now, when we're either well-to-do physicians or government civil servants, we probably won't remember what an extraordinary year it was. A year in which the person we spent the most time with was dead, cold, and full of formaldehyde. In which NOPD went on strike and ruined a cherished tradition in this crazy, decadent city that takes its traditions very seriously. In which we finally began realizing a life-long ambition. A year filled with anxiety, pressure, and wondering just what the hell type of masochism made us want to go to med school anyway.

And now in retrospect, it was a good year. We learned a lot. We made some good friends and had some good times together.

But the best thing of all about the Freshman year is that, for most of us anyway, it's over with and behind us.

LSUMC
NURSING

I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly:
To pass my life in purity and to practice my profession faithfully;
I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous and will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drug;
I will do all in my power to maintain and elevate the standard of my profession, and will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling;
With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work, and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care.

— the Florence Nightingale Pledge

As I face my transition from student to professional nurse, I pledge that I will practice nursing of the highest caliber; recognizing both my potential and my limitations.

I will accept nursing as an independent, progressive art, in which to stand still is to go backward. In being both assertive and dynamic, I will become the catalyst to foster change. Instilled with the concept of holism, I will strive to promote the highest level of wellness for each individual client.

As I leave tonight, I accept these challenges, and those that will come with tomorrow . . .

Sometimes the road of life seems long as we travel through the years
And, with a heart that's broken and eyes brimful of tears,
We falter in our weariness
and sink beside the way,
But God leans down and whispers,
"Child, there'll be another day" —
And the road will grow much smoother
and much easier to face,
So do not be disheartened —
this is just a "Resting Place."

DENTISTRY

THE MOUTH

The mouth in its entirety is an important and even wonderous part of our anatomy, our emotion, our life; it is the site of our very being.

When an animal loses its teeth, it cannot survive unless it is domesticated; its very existence is terminated; it dies.

In the human, the mouth is the means of speaking, of expressing love, happiness and joy, anger, ill-temper, or sorrow.

It is the primary sex contact; hence it is our initial import to our regeneration and survival by food and propagation.

It deserves the greatest care it can receive at any sacrifice.

FACULTY

Where there is an open mind,
there will always be a frontier.
— Charles F. Kettering

The close observer soon discovers that the teacher's task is not to implant facts, but to place the subject to be learned in front of the learner and through sympathy, emotion, imagination, and patience, to awaken in the learner the resistless drive for answers and insights which enlarge the personal life and give it meaning.
— Nathan M. Pusey

It is the purpose of higher education to unsettle the minds of young men, to widen their horizons and to enflame their intellects.
— Robert Maynard Hutchins

Far away there in the sunshine are my highest aspirations.
I may not reach them, but I can look up and see their beauty, believe in them,
and try to follow where they lead.
— Louisa May Alcott

Having been called to task in the final few months of this yearbook, we hope that no one has been slighted or omitted through error. Certainly, many people have given of their time and creative talents in order to complete this book, and our whole-hearted thanks go out to you for your contributions.

On the other hand, to you, the reader, it is hoped that as you leaf through the pages, many memories will be brought to mind and that your year at LSU Medical Center can be revisited at any time by way of this yearbook.

We would like to especially thank Mr. John Liles, of Taylor Publishing Company; for, without his close supervision and comments, this book would not have been possible. And to Bobby Bourge, goes a special word of thanks for all that he did and for "giving" us the "opportunity" to work with this yearbook.

In closing, we would wish Ernie Graves, who will edit the 1980 MURMUR, the best of luck with his undertaking, and express our feelings of confidence that his book will be more successful than ever before.
